ONSIDERING THE fact that nearly half of its players are fit subjects for the hospital the Los Angeles team did well yesterday and with a little luck at a couple of stages of the contest would have snatched the game from Uncle Harris and his valiant band of young men.

Tredway and McCauley are laid up entirely, Newman is in such shape that it is shameful that he is obliged to play at all and Rogers is likewise taking great chances with his arm by using it before it is in trim for throwing. Besides this, both Glenalvin and Hulen had a thumb knocked out of joint last week and are still suffering with sore joints.

The principal obstacle between the Angels and victory yesterday was Mr. "Peachblow" Hoffman. This old gentleman stood in the pitcher's box and plucked through a ball which to all appearances was as big a balloon, but somehow or other the local sluggers found great difficulty in getting it outside the diamond or in safe territory. This was especially noticeable when a safe hit would have done some good.

Jack Roach also gave a nice exhibition, but while he was only touched for seven, against nine off Hoffman, the visitors got them two at a time just when they were needed. He had two fielding chances, however, and missed them both, one of them letting in a couple of runs in the second inning.

Billy Strong, the Pomona Pet, was again in the game, out in right garden. His stick work was also a feature, a single, a double and a sacrifice being his contribution. Jack Newman played first base in a polished manner, but it was painful to see him on the base lines, as he went hobbling along holding his injured knee.

After two men were out in the first inning Hasamacaar cracked out a two-bagger, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Glenalvin's single.

In the next inning old man Hoffman did the business. When the bases had been filled with singles by Strong, Rogers and Roach, he retired the side without a run, and again in the third, with two men on bases and only one out, he shut out the side.

The second and last tally for Los Angeles came in the fourth when Rogers singled, took second on Sharp's error and was around for four hits.

Roch laid the foundation of Uncle's game in the second inning, when Spies the first man up went down the line on a walk. Reitz singled. Peoples sacrificed them up a peg and they both scored when Roach muffed Levy's pop fly. Levy stole second and scored on Fanning's single.

In the fourth Peoples singled, stole second and scored on Levy's hit.

In the seventh Hoffman singled, stole second and went to third on a wild pitch. Hanley walked to first, stole second, and on the throw down Hoffman stole in home. Sharp's two-bagger scored Hanley, ending the run-getting. Hoffman did not allow the Angels a hit after the fifth inning. Following is the story in figures:

DIMON DUST.

Prof. Jack Fanning's curves always were rather easy for the Angels.

Prof. Jack Fanning and Louie Bals will be in the box this afternoon. Game called at 3:30 o'clock.

Local cranks will not begrudge Uncle a fall out of the Angels as long as the Colonels are downing the Dukes.

If it is necessary for Newman to be played today he will probably go behind the bat where he will have little running to do and a chance to head off base stealers.

Billy Strong will go in to pitch one day next week. The event will be designated as "Pomona day," and a large attendance of the younger's fellow townsmen is expected.

There will be some sport this afternoon, as the management at the Los Angeles Theater have offered a box to the batter who makes the first home run, to see the opening performance of Frank Daniels in Little Puck. All the boys will try hard, and if Tredway has his usual batting luck, he is liable to get the reward. Manager Vanderbeck has very kindly invited all the members of The Little Puck Company to witness the game this afternoon, which invitation has been accepted.

The double championship season, which has been warmly advocated by President Vanderbeck and the Times ever since the opening of the games, will in all probability be adopted by the California League directors. Manager Harris informed a Times reporter to last evening that he is favorable to the scheme, and says furthermore that there is little doubt but that it will be adopted. The first season will close Sunday, July 24, and the second season will open the following Wednesday. In case two different clubs win in July and November, a series of winter games will be played for the League championship. Los Angeles has less to gain than either of the other clubs by a change at this time, but President Vanderbeck is anxious to keep up with the game.

Oakland 5, San Jose 4.
SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—Oakland defeated San Jose today at Oakland by a score of 9 to 4. Costly errors by the Dukes, combined with hitting by the Colonels in the early innings, settled the game.

POLITICAL POINTS.

In carrying out their programme of using the alleged third party to throw the election of the President into the House, the Democratic bosses of the House have been compelled to turn toward the Alliance representation. They assisted in instructing the resolution adopted by the House instructing the Ways and Means Committee to report the Sub-treasury Bill, and Speaker Crisp has promised them that the Committee on Rules will set aside three days for debate thereon, as soon as the Appropriations bills are disposed of.

Jerry's proposal for returning to Congress are very bright. A bitter fight is now being made over him in his district. Some of his constituents think he has got to be too much of a dude, others that he is too radical a free trader, and others that he is all round a demagogue. Now Jerry wants to be governor of Kansas.

Senator Morgan refers to the Presidential possibilities in the Senate as "dark, handicapped, spurned and beaten horses." But no one has ever mentioned Morgan as even a spurned Presidential candidate. With all his ability and valour talking gunnies, Moran is never thought of as a Presidential possibility.

Since the death of L. L. Polk, the President of the Farmers' Alliance, who was prominently spoken of for Vice-President on the People's ticket, there has been an effort made to boost Congressman Thomas E. Watson of Georgia for the place. The latest report is that the ticket most likely to be favored will be Senator Stewart of Nevada and Watson of Georgia; the one on account of his radicalism, the other because he is a member of the Alliance. It is not known whether Stewart will accept the nomination, but leading men of the People's party are reported to be working for him.

In his address before the Minneapolis convention Gov. McKinley, in speaking of the tariff bill, said: "There is not a line in that bill that is not American, not a clause that is not patriotic, not a page that is not representative of our people."

Protect the industries of the East—protect the industries of the West—protect the highest possibilities of American citizenship." This simple sentence embodies a truth which every intelligent voter has already recognized. When, therefore, the Democratic convention at Chicago proceeds to denounce the McKinley tariff it will put itself in the attitude of denouncing not the American industries but American patriotism and the intelligence of the American people.

Throughout the mining camps of Arizona one sentiment seems prevalent that the silver industry should receive recognition. Protect the industries of the East—protect the industries of the West—protect the highest possibilities of American citizenship.

In pursuance of a request the secretary reread the minority report amid applause. The demand was made for the portion to be stricken out, the secretary read the portion relating to tariff, after which Neal addressed the convention in advocacy of his amendment:

We demand Republican protection as a fraud [cheers] on the labor of a great majority of the American people. We demand a few [lines of] "Read it again." We declare it to be the fundamental principle of the Democratic party that the Federal Government has no constitutional power to impose and collect tariff duties except for the purpose of revenue only, and that the collection of such taxes shall be limited to the necessities of the Government when honestly and economically administered.

NATIONAL REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS.

For President,
BENJ. HARRISON.....of Indiana.
 For Vice-President,
WHITE-LAW REID.....of New York.

The People's Press, the San Francisco organ of the People's party, is predictably waiting until it gets $50,000 before it launches out as a daily.

A BUNG factory in West Virginia has just been destroyed. Another case of saving at the spigot and losing at the bung. And at a time when the Democratic party can't afford it, either.

The Buffalo Express issued an illustrated edition giving views in the Oil City and Titusville region after the recent catastrophe. The illustrations are equal in artistic merit to those of the weekly illustrated press and score another stroke of enterprise for an American daily.

The better elements of San Francisco have joined in a vigorous crusade against the dives—those cellar saloons with the allurements of music, drink and female waiters—which are such a demoralizing factor in the community and furnish an open door to all sorts of vice. San Francisco seems to be undergoing a moral quickening all along the line.

The whole country is watching with interest St. Joe's experiment in regulating the drink habit by prescribing that all saloons shall have clear glass fronts and no screens or other obstructions to cut off a view of the bar. The general impression is that the system will prove a great promoter of the private jug.

In Mexico the law finds women who cure ills by faith witches, unless they have ecclesiastical sanction. And, what is more, it condemns them to death. After St. Theresa has been shot, according to Mexican law, her bones may work miracles to the confusion of the local magistracy. But that will be poor satisfaction to St. Theresa.

The Columbus celebration at the Spanish port of Palos, from which the navigator sailed, will begin on August 2, and continue to October 18. The announcement of the opening of the festivities will be made by heralds going about the streets with trumpets and cymbals. The whole celebration will be very picturesque and as romantic as the Spanish mind.

LETITIA TYLER SEMPLE, daughter of ex-President Tyler, and formerly a "lady of the White House," is now, at 82, a friendless, penniless inmate of the Corcoran home for aged women in Washington. Almost within sight of the old home where she was courted and feted in the days of her youth and belle-epoch, she sits and awaits the end with her grief and her memories for company.

As the correspondence forwarded from Los Angeles by members of the recent editorial excursion filters back through the mails, some strange, quaint and crude ideas are presented. For example, in one letter we see that Redlands is so named from the character of its soil, and that it is this soil which produces the famous redwood trees of California.

A SAN FRANCISCO woman has just patented an invention that will be of inestimable benefit to inexperienced carvers. It is a small nickel or silver machine that clamps to the side of the dish, and to which is attached an adjustable fork, which, when plunged into the breastbone of a fowl, will hold it perfectly still and permit of the most frantic efforts at dismemberment without the chicken flying all over the room and scattering the gravy.

The Johnstown relief commission has finished its work and rendered its accounts. The sum of nearly $8,000,000 was disbursed in caring for the victims of the Pennsylvania flood, burying the dead and restoring the town. The great disaster occurred three years ago the 31st day of May. It was the monumental calamity of the country. But the mighty deluge of waters was matched by the flood of charity let loose in response to Johnstown's appeal for help.

THE IRRIGATION AGE of June 15 announces the departure for Europe of Prof. Louis G. Carpenter of the Colorado Agricultural College, who will devote the summer to a study of irrigation in France, Italy and Spain, and contribute a series of most interesting papers to the Age. These papers will deal with irrigation works and agricultural methods studied from the standpoints of an American who is thoroughly familiar with our own problems. They will be written for the advantage of American irrigators, engineers and investors, and ought to command wide interest. The articles will be illustrated from photographs taken by Prof. Carpenter himself.

TWO GREAT PAPERS.

For the Campaign and Longer—Both for Only $1.50 a Year.

Under a special arrangement with the New York Weekly Tribune, foremost among national Republican journals—conducted by Whitelaw Reid—that great paper and the SATURDAY TIMES AND WEEKLY MIRROR (12 pages) will be sent to us to any address in the United States for $1.50; cash in advance.

Or we will send the DAILY TIMES by mail 5 months and the Weekly Tribune one year for $4.00.

We will deliver THE TIMES to any city subscriber for 6 months and mail the Weekly Tribune one year to any address, both for $3.00.

These are unparalleled offers. Subscribe now and secure these great papers throughout the Presidential campaign and for months beyond its close.

THE TIMES-MIRROR COMPANY.

A Crusade Against the Social Evil.

The movement against prostitution in this city has at last taken definite shape in an order issued by the Police Commission to the force to suppress all bawdy houses. This is a heroic measure, and one whose success depends on other things than a rigid execution of the law. As exemplified hitherto in this city, the unfortunate and vicious people who inhabit houses of ill-fame may be driven from pillar to post, but they cannot be driven out of existence, and they cannot be driven into leading virtuous lives. One of the first results of breaking up their regular habitats on Alameda street and in other portions of the city designated as the "slums," will be to scatter them in lodgings in the big blocks which line the principal thoroughfares. They will hide away in obscure corners and be brought into closer contact with respectable people than hitherto. They will patrol the business streets of the city, and they will openly or covertly advertise their shame and place temptation in the way of young men more than formerly. At the same time it will be more difficult to maintain police surveillance over them. We cannot avoid the belief that the latter condition of affairs would be worse for the general public than the former.

Against this view the people who are sustaining the crusade urge that it is unlawful to maintain houses of prostitution anywhere, and that if the loose women establish themselves in the big blocks it is the duty of the police to drive them out again. Here the movement begins in a circle. From the slums to the blocks; from the blocks to the slums; back and forth in a ceaseless round, and in a vain endeavor to compel people to be good. It can't be done in that way. However high our standards, we cannot legislate sin out of existence.

Elsewhere we publish a communication setting forth the plan of campaign adopted by those who are leading the movement. It is to supplement the rigors of the law with moral suasion, and to offer these abandoned women whom the law is driving about a chance to escape from their environment—a refuge in some asylum where they may be cared for until they are able to go out into reputable avenues of life and provide for themselves in an honest way. This is practical Christianity, and if followed up consistently and with sufficient means to do what is promised, it may result in minimizing the social evil and saving many wretched women who would be glad to abandon their present mode of life.

If any practical and substantial good is to come from the crusade it must come through this moral suasion branch of it.

There is no question that, for the credit of the city, the bawdy houses should be cleared away from Alameda street, where they are now paraded before all the people who enter or leave the city by the Southern Pacific Railway. A city has no right to flaunt its vice in the faces of visitors, and as a simple business proposition it pursues a very poor policy when it does so. Let the houses of ill-fame be driven off Alameda street by the strong hand of the law, and then, if some of the inmates think best to leave the city and others on their way to safer quarters in the blocks are intercepted by the good people and induced to reform, so much the better.

We should not flatter ourselves with the hope, however, that the social evil may thus be totally eradicated from the city. The millennium is not yet come. It does not lie within the possibility of human achievement to make everybody virtuous. But it is possible to make every form of vice odious, and to work upon the moral impulses of some people and induce them to lead better lives.

We warn the reformers, however, that they must not be wanting in their part of the work if any substantial results are to be accomplished. A mere execution of orders by the police will make matters worse instead of better. The good people must be prepared to furnish houses for one hundred to five hundred women and must furnish the funds to support them until they become self-sustaining; they must also exercise the moral suasion to induce those women to adopt better lives. It is a large contract, and we wish them every success in it.

The "Yaller Dog" Year.

Previous to the Minneapolis convention the Democratic managers were proclaiming that if Harrison should be nominated they could beat him with anybody—"even with a yaller dog." Harrison was nominated. During the campaign, up to the time of the nomination of Mr. Cleveland, the Republicans have asserted with equal confidence that if nominated they could do him up with the traditional yellow dog. The nominations are, therefore, highly satisfactory each to the people of the opposite party. If the nomination of Mr. Harrison was not received with vociferous enthusiasm, it was no less welcome to Republicans that the nomination of Cleveland is to the Democrats. Personal magnetism is not to be an element in this campaign. The Presidential nominees, having filled the office, have each practically given the same number of disappointments in the distribution of patronage, and are therein upon an equal footing. The contest is thus narrowed down to the declaration of principles enunciated by the two conventions. Divesting the platforms of party clap-trap and demagogic, which is injected to mean something or nothing, we find that the real issues are tariff for protection vs. tariff for revenue only; limited silver coinage vs. free coinage, and civil service reforms vs. "to victory belong the spoils."

Never before in the history of national campaigns in the United States, have the great political parties entered upon a campaign with issues so clearly defined and not obstructed or obscured by personal attachments or excitement.

The result will be that voters will have the arguments presented upon principle, fortified by some facts and a great deal of fiction. But they will separate the wheat from the chaff and reach their own conclusions. Appealing thus to the intelligence of the American voters, we do not doubt the election of Harrison in November, as the representative of the principles of the Republican party. We are glad that the campaign opens without excitement, and that the nominees represent each party, and that the nominees represent the declared principles of each party, and when the verdict is given at the polls, it will be accepted as the deliberate judgment of the American people, and as such will remain in force until new conditions arise which may demand a change.

CONSIDERING the great surplus of rainfall which has prevailed in many sections of the West, and notably along the Missouri and Mississippi valleys, it is hard to understand how the farmers of western Kansas have been suffering from drought, but such is the fact.

At Goodland there was no rain for three weeks up to the 15th inst., and the farmers were becoming despondent; when they made a contract with the Swisher Rain Company to bring them a shower. Operations were begun on the evening of the 14th and within twenty-four hours there was a copious rainfall. The Melbourne plan was followed. The farmers, of course, attribute the rainfall to the rain-makers, and are enthusiastic over the success. The manager of the Swisher company claims that he can produce rain on twenty-four hours' notice at any time in any part of the continent.

AN EASTERN EXCHANGE proposes a scale of prices for barbers, based on the amount of facial territory they shave or the mechanical difficulties they encounter: For scraping whole face, 15 to 20 cents, according to size; for the chin alone, 8 cents; for the upper lip, except in special cases, 6 cents; for the two cheeks and upper lip, 12 cents. Something like this would answer the purpose admirably. In the case of a man who wears a reinforced mustache, the fringe running down below the corners of his mouth so as to convey a false impression concerning the actual length of the mustache proper 50 cents should be the charge. If he wears an imperial in addition to this the sum of $1 should be exacted, with bay rum and tonic extra.

ON THE inland waterways which traverse the world's Fair grounds from one end to another, there will be plying three kinds of boats for public use. These will be the omnibus, express and cab boats or launches. The omnibus boats will make regular trips around the waterways, stopping at each building. The express boats will make round trips without stopping, while the cab boats, with carrying capacity of four persons, may be hailed at any point and engaged for the trip or by the hour, as is a hansom cab.

AMUSEMENTS.

AT THE PLAYHOUSES.

FRANK DANIELS and his intrepid Little Puck open a three nights' engagement at the Los Angeles Theater tonight, and the favorite comedian will doubtless receive a hearty welcome, as no member of his profession is more popular with the Angelites than he.

AS HERETOFORE STATED, a number of new features have been added since Little Puck's last visit to this city, and the fact that during its eight weeks' engagement in San Francisco recently it attracted $30,000 into the coffers of the Bush street theater, is some guarantee of its popularity.

A genuine novelty, to wit, a really meritorious American play, The Witch, which Marie Hubert Frohman and her large company will present at the Grand Opera house for three nights and matines, beginning Monday, June 27. The Witch is an entirely new story of New England life in the semi-timid days of the Puritans, and commanded more attention from thoughtful critics than any other American production in recent years.

THREATENED WITH FLOOD.

POTTSVILLE (Pa.). June 22.—There is danger of the breaking of the reservoir of the Potts Company. The Potts people frankly confess they can do nothing more to keep the dam together. The people of the town spent the night in the hills and are still there. There is talk of ending the suspense by blowing up the dam with dynamite. The Reading railroad has suspended operations in the threatened valley.

AGREED UPON A SCALE.

PITTSBURGH, June 22.—A joint conference of the Amalgamated Association and tin-plate and sheet-iron manufacturers agreed upon a scale this morning, after an all-night session, and the mills will be run without interruption. The scale is the one presented by the workmen.

GROVER WINS.

country west of the Mississippi where there is but one Presidential candidate—a noble son of New York, the son of liberty and the son of the highest honor, and this great intelligent convention can place upon him, a son who was born and reared in poverty, accustomed to hard labor and who has thereto learned to sympathize with the poor and distressed. The name of this noble son of New York and adopted son of Iowa is Horace Boies.

It is true that Lincoln was a Republican. When the Republicans in 1860 deserted their tariff principles, and Iowa followed the worshippers of protection, our candidate refused to follow the party and united with the Democratic party. He led to this course solely by the courage of his convictions and firmness of his justice.

From that time he has fought unceasingly for the cause of the Democracy.

In 1869 he consented to accept the nomination for Governor at the earnest solicitations of the Democracy, and was chosen by acclamation.

He kindled the smoldering embers of Democracy into a blaze of enthusiasm over every hill and in every valley of the State.

He infused new courage into the hearts of his followers.

He routed the enemy and placed the laurel wreath of victory upon the head of his hero, Horace Boies.

Again, in 1880 his voice was heard rallying the forces of the Democracy to the rescue of the innocent of the obnoxious McKinley law, intolerant, sumptuary legislation, paternal government, centralization, and the like.

TREEING A BEAR.

By Joaquin Miller.

[CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]
Away back in the "fifties" bears were numerous on the banks of the Willamette River, in Oregon, as are hogs in the hickory woods of Kentucky in nut-time. And that is saying that bears were mighty plenty in Oregon about forty years ago.

You see after the missionaries established their great cattle ranches in Oregon and gathered the Indians from the wilderness and set them to work and fed them on beef and bread, the bears had it all their own way, till they literally overran the land. And this gave a great chance for sport to the sons of missionaries and the sons of new settlers "where rolls the Oregon."

And it was not perilous sport either, for the grizzly was rarely encountered here. His home was further to the south. Neither was the large and clumsy cinnamon bear abundant on the banks of the beautiful Willamette, in those dear old days, when you might ride from sun to sun, belly deep in wild flowers, and never see a house. But the small black bear, as indicated before, was on deck in great force at all times and in nearly all places.

A perilous moment.

It was the custom in those days for boys to take this bear in the lasso, usually on horseback.

We would ride along close to the dense woods that grew by the river bank, and getting between him and his base of retreat would, as soon as we sighted a bear feeding out in the open plain, swing our lassos and charge him with whoop and yell. His habit of rearing up and standing erect and doubling his fists as if to fight, a la John L. Sullivan, made him an easy prey to the lasso. And then the fun of taking him home through the long, strong grass!

As a rule he did not show fight when once in the toils of the lasso; but in a few hours, making the best of the situation like a little philosopher, he would lead alone like a dog.

There were of course exceptions to this exemplary conduct.

On one occasion, particularly, Ed Parish, the son of a celebrated missionary, came near losing his life by counting too confidently on the docility of a bear which he had taken into a lasso and was leading home.

His bear suddenly stopped, stood up and began to haul in the lasso, hand over hand just like a sailor. And as the other end of the rope was fastened tight to the big Spanish pomel of the saddle, who of course the distance between the bear and the horse soon grew perilously short, and Ed Parish slid from his horse's back and took to the brush, leaving horse and bear to fight it out as best they could.

When he came back, with some boys to help him, the horse was dead and the bear was gone, having cut the rope with his teeth.

After having lost his horse in this way poor little Ed Parish had to do his hunting on foot, and as my people were immigrants and very poor, why we, that is my brother and I, were on foot also. This kept us three boys together a great deal, and many a peculiar adventure we had in those dear old days, "when all the world was young."

Young and dashing Ed Parish was nearly always the hero of our achievements, for he was a bold, enterprising fellow, who feared nothing at all. In fact he finally lost his life from his very great love of adventure. But this is too sad to tell now; and we must be content with the story about how he treed a bear, for the present.

We three boys had gone bear hunting up a wooded cañon close to his father's ranch late one warm summer afternoon. Ed had a gun, but as I said before, my people were very poor, so neither brother nor I had any other arms or implements than the inseparable lasso.

Ed, who ways always the captain in such cases, chose the center of the fence, deep cañon for himself, and putting my brother on the hill to his right and myself on the hill to his left, ordered a simultaneous "Forward march!"

After a time we heard him shoot. Then we heard him shout. Then there was a long silence.

Then suddenly high and wild his voice rang out above the tree tops down in the deep cañon.

"Come down! Come quick! I've treed a bear! Come and help me catch him; come quick! Oh, Moses; come quick, and-and-and-catch him!"

My brother came tearing down the steep hill on his side of the cañon as I descended from my side. We got down about the same time. But the trees in their dense foliage, together with the compact underbrush, concealed everything. We could see neither bear nor boy.

This Oregon is a horrid country; warm and wet; nearly always moist and humid, and so the trees are covered with moss. Long, gray, sweeping moss swings from the boughs, drooping boughs and every bit of sunlight that shot out from one year's end to the other. And it rains here the biggest half of the year, and then these densely-wooded cañons are as dark as caverns. I know of nothing so grandly gloomy as these dense Oregon woods in winter time.

I laid my ear to the ground after I got a glimpse of my brother on the other side of the cañon, but could hear nothing at all but the beating of my heart.

Suddenly there was a wild yell away up in the dense boughs of a big, mossy maple tree that leaned over toward my side of the cañon. I looked, and looked with eagerness, but could see nothing whatever.

Then again came the yell from the dense top of the big leaning maple. Then there was a moment of silence, and then the cry: "Oh, Moses! Why don't you come, I say, and help me catch 'im?" By this time I could see the leaves rustling. And I could see the boy resting, too.

And just behind him was a bear. He had treed the bear sure enough!

My eyes gradually grew accustomed to the gloom and density, and I now saw the red mouth of the bear amid the green foliage high overhead. The bear had already pulled off one of Ed's boots and was making a bootjack of his big red mouth for the other.

"Why don't you come on I say, and help me catch him?"

He kicked himself a little further along up the leaning trunk and in doing so kicked his boot in the bear's mouth.

"Oh, Moses! Moses! why don't you come? I've got a bear I tell you."

"Where is it, Ed?" shouted my brother.

"I'm here, Ed!"

Then my brother and I shouted out to Ed at the same time. This gave him great courage. He said something like "Confound you" to the bear, and getting his foot loose without losing the boot, he kicked the bear right in the mouth. This brought things to a standstill. Ed kicked along a little higher up, and as the leaning trunk of the tree was already bending under the bear's weight, he did not seem disposed to go further.

My brother got to the bottom of the cañon and brought the gun up to where I stood. But as he had no powder or bullets, and as Ed could not get them to him, even if he would have been willing to risk his shooting at the bear, it was hard to decide what to do. He had been badly wounded and, of course was full of fight. It was already dusk and we could not stay there all night.

"Boys," shouted Ed, as he steadied himself in the forks of his leaning and overhanging bough, "I'm going to come down on my laz rope. There! Take that end of it, tie your laz ropes to it and scramble up the hill."

We obeyed him to the letter. And as we did so he fastened his lasso firmly to the leaning bough and descended like a spider to where we had stood a moment before. We all scrambled up out of the cañon together and as quickly as possible. When we went back next day to get our ropes we found the bear dead at the root of the old mossy maple. The skin was a splendid one, and Ed insisted that my brother and I should have it. And we gladly accepted it.

My brother, who was older and wiser than I, said that we should not be disposed to tell how he had "treed a bear." But I told not, for he was a very generous-hearted fellow. Anyhow, we never told the story while he lived.

The Santa Fe's Hotel at Barstow Burned Yesterday.

PASSENGER TRAINS THAT ENTER AND LEAVE LOS ANGELES—PRAISE FOR THE SAN FRANCISCO TRAFFIC ASSOCIATION.

The Santa Fe Company's hotel at Barstow, the junction point of the Southern California and Atlantic and Pacific roads, burned to the ground yesterday afternoon. Fire was discovered in the roof of the kitchen at 1:30 p.m. and the entire building was consumed at 2 o'clock, leaving nothing but the brick walls standing. The loss is stated to be $25,000 with insurance of about $15,000. As short as the time was from the first to the finish of the fire much of the furniture was saved.

At present 134 passenger trains enter and leave Los Angeles every week day, distributed as follows: Los Angeles Terminal, 50; Southern Pacific, 38; Santa Fe, 36, and Redondo Railway, 12. This does not include the trips made by the dummy line to Hollywood. The "combination" trains for San Francisco, Santa Barbara and Redondo, Santa Monica, which for convenience, are taken out of the city by one engine, but are separated before reaching their destination, are in each case counted as one train. Can any other city on the Pacific Coast equal this record?

COL. W. G. SCHREIBER

Again Elected Commander of the Seventh Regiment—Col. Russell's Protest.

Last night William G. Schreiber was elected Colonel of the Seventh Regiment N.G.C., at Armory Hall on Broadway. There has been a lengthy contest for this office between Col. Schreiber and Col. W. H. H. Russell. Russell was ousted about a year ago by court martial, and Schreiber was elected, but Russell worked his points so fine that the Commander-in-chief reinstated him and Schreiber was let out. Russell was again brought up before a court martial, but the case has not yet been decided, and as Russell's term of office ends next Saturday, the staff officers who have been opposed to him for a long time past made up their minds to take proper steps to have Schreiber elected.

Schreiber got wind of what was going on last night, and before the election he presented the following protest to Maj. M. T. Owens:

Maj. M. T. Owens: Sir: As an officer of the Ninth Infantry, Regt., U. S. A., and qualified to vote at an election for field officers of said regiment, I hereby respectfully protest against an election being held at this time for colonel of said regiment under special orders No. 15, dated at New York, June 18, 1892, and the following are the grounds upon which my protest is based:

First.—No application of the officers entitled to elect such colonel has been made to the general of the First Brigade, N.G.C., as required by section 1985 of the Political Code of this State, said First Brigade being the brigade to which said Seventh Regiment belongs.

Second.—No appointment of a person to preside at such election has been made by the general of the First Brigade as required by said section 1985, has not been given.

Fifth.—There is no vacancy in the office of colonel of said regiment.

Very respectfully, W. H. H. RUSSELL, Colonel Seventh Infantry Regiment, First Brigade, N.G.C.

Maj. Owens promptly denied the request, and the colonel walked out. The officers then proceeded to elect Col. Schreiber in regular form.

Speeches were made by Maj. Owens and Col. Schreiber. It is now believed that there will be no more trouble in the Seventh Regiment.

Third.—No orders of any kind, special or otherwise, have been issued which have been issued by the brigadier commander.

Fourth.—The notice of election required by said section 1985, has not been given.

Fifth.—There is no vacancy in the office of colonel of said regiment.

Very respectfully, W. H. H. RUSSELL, Colonel Seventh Infantry Regiment, First Brigade, N.G.C.

Maj. Owens promptly denied the request, and the colonel walked out. The officers then proceeded to elect Col. Schreiber in regular form.

Speeches were made by Maj. Owens and Col. Schreiber. It is now believed that there will be no more trouble in the Seventh Regiment.

LONDON, THE MARVELOUS.

The Second of Maj. Dane's Interesting Lectures.

An appreciative audience greeted Maj. Dane last evening at the First Methodist Church for his second lecture on "London, the Marvelous."

London stands unique and alone, a great world, made up of the world, for every nation and tribe are represented. It covers 600 acres of land, with 5,000,000 people, who consume yearly 5,000,000 barrels of flour, 7,000,000 cattle and sheep, 5,000,000 pounds of fowl and fish. There are 80,000 miles of streets, and they are kept even cleaner than here.

There are 750 miles of railroad, 160 of which are underground, besides 6,000 omnibuses and 20,000 cabs. Every year over 14,000 people are lost in London.

The speaker gave a most vivid description of his visits to the slums, where the poor are crowded in herds, and there are great army of the nobility and middle classes who are working among them and trying how to solve the great problem, how to help them. They maintain 101 hospitals at their own expense and a great number of dispensaries.

He spoke of the delights of its parks with their oaks and elms of centuries, and no insulting little tablets looking up into your face saying "Keep off the grass," but it grows to be enjoyed. Westminster Abbey—an epic in stone! London fog, the most interesting thing in London. It is composed of everything and stops everything for two, three or even seven days until it passes over. Think of the contrasts of life in London and take hope, for in it rests the great heart of the world.

Broadway Blocks.

A permit has been issued to move the Newark residence from Broadway, near Potomac block. The residence next north, in place of which the J. W. Robinson Company is to erect a new block, is now moved nearly off the lot and the Newark residence will immediately follow it. Mr. Newark has plans drawn by A. M. Edelman for a four-story and basement business block 60 x 150 feet. The front will be of stone and Philadelphia pressed brick and there will be highly ornamental terra cotta cornice. The general style of the architecture is a mixture of French renaissance and classic, and the building will cost $40,000 to $50,000. Mr. Newark has not yet set any time for commencing the work, but will probably be soon. This, with the Bingham and Robinson Company blocks, will add 180 feet more frontage to first-class business property to the fine structures which already ornament that thoroughfare.

—BY—

713 South Main Street, - - - Los Angeles, California.

"Skillful cure increases longevity to the world."

"Ingenious—locating diseases through the pulse and excellent remedies are great blessings to the world."

The above are two fac-similes of many REWARDS OF MERIT, DIPLOMAS OF PROFESSIONALS, given weekly from time to time, bestowing upon the GRADUATED CHINESE PHYSICIAN, DR. WONG, for his medical abilities and corrective power.

It has long been customary among the Chinese people when one becomes sick and when repeated attempts to cure him have failed, and he is perhaps given up to die, if after having been taken in by some physician, to go to Dr. Wong, who, though not a regular physician, but a regular man for professional services rendered, makes the physician a present as a token of gratitude for his restoration to health and the prolongation of his life. This present consists usually of a broad plank, presenting much the appearance of a sign-board, with characters extremely magnified, and which is to be hung up in the successful physician's office, and to be seen by all.

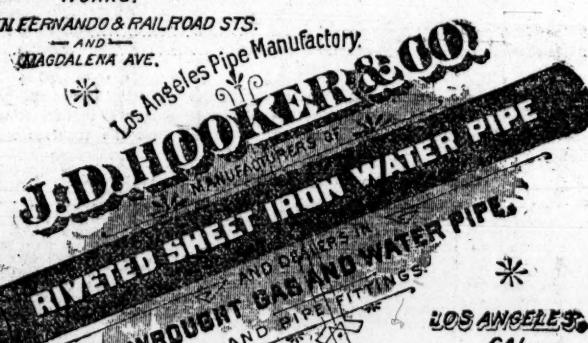

It is a motto which highly complimented the physician for his great skill in effecting a cure of the disease which once afflicted the donor.

It is now an uncommon sight to see a great number of these COMPLIMENTARY DIPLOMAS adorning the offices of Chinese physicians in their native country, and indeed a number of the most successful ones in this country are the happy possessors of a few of these high tokens of very superior medical ability.

Graduating Exercises of the Normal School.

A Large Class Presented With Their Diplomas.

An Interesting Musical and Literary Programme Given.

Exercises at Occidental College Yesterday Morning—Annual Concert of the College of Music at the University.

The graduating exercises of the class of '92 of the branch Normal school in this city, took place at the Grand Opera House at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The building was filled from the parquette to the god's gallery with the friends of the graduates, and standing room was not to be had long before the hour set for the exercises to begin.

The stage was handsomely decorated with flowers and evergreens, and every available space on the first floor was taken up by floral offerings that were handed over the footlights as the various graduates completed their numbers on the programme.

The graduating class is composed of the following ladies and gentlemen: Carrie M. Arnold, Maggie Brown, Minnie Campbell, Bertha Chamberlain, Mattie Clark, Louise E. Clarke, Harriet H. Conkling, Annie Cook, Marian Cook, Nellie Davis, Yetta F. Dexter, Sadie Eckert, Edward Delland, William W. Donnell, Robert L. Durham, William E. Entz, Edith H. Field, Eleanor G. Finch, Enidce M. Finch, Jeannette Fox, Eva Griswold, C. Marie Halverson, Florence E. Hard, Bessie E. Harris, Lizzie F. Hasseider, Emma Haughwout, Anna L. Holmes, Carrie L. Holmes, Flora G. Howes, Maud P. Howlett, Mary E. Johnston, Annie E. Keillor, Henry Kerr, Ida A. Knall, Mabelle L. Lent, Emma E. Little, Mira Lord, Clara E. Lum, Mary F. Matland, Mary S. McCoy, George W. Monroe, Linella Morgan, Regina Nauerth, Etta V. Neibel, Annie H. Noble, Mary G. Overman, Sadie T. Pepper, Burney Porter, Clara M. Preston, Stella Price, Sarah L. Putnam, Clara C. Rannels, Cora A. Reavis, Clara L. Robertson, Eva A. Rockwood, Carrie B. Scull, Nellie J. St. Clair, M. Emma Taylor, Hadassah Thomas, Mary E. Thompson, Gertrude E. Ticknor, Pearle Tritt, Rosa T. Tyler, Emma Waggle, Agnes M. Wallace, Henrietta Weite, Annie F. Williams, Lillian A. Williamson, Virginia B. Williamson, Jessie B. Wylie, Stella E. Young.

The following interesting programme was carried out in a most excellent manner:

Quintette at Salon, Op. 39 (Schubert)—Hamilton Quintette Club.
Poem, "Public Opinion"—Edith H. Field.
Poem, "A Story in Stone"—Mary G. Overman.
Aria, Pur Diestci (Antonio Lotti)—Miss Ruth W. Kimball.
Essay, "Pleasant People"—Annie Cook.
Essay, "California in Fiction"—Mary F. Matland.
Chorus, "Image of the Rose" (Reichardt).
Essay, "Plain Living and High Thinking"—Enidce M. Finch.
Essay, "Dolce far Niente"—Nellie J. St. Clair.

Cello solo, Nocturne, Op. 9, No. 2 (Chopin)—B. Bierlich.
Presentation of diplomas.
Class song.

The class song by Yetta F. Dexter is as follows:

Softly, ah, softly,
Sing of the past years,
As o'er thy swaying the memories
Past times are ever dear.
Thoughts of each fading year
Linger, and softly their rosy tints reveal.
Softly, ah, softly,
Sing of the morn.
Which is now dawning in crimson beauty bright.
Sing softly.

II.
Gladly, ah, gladly,
Sing of the future:
Hope is our guide as we climb the mountain side.
May the new path be bright,
With a clear golden light,
And in our hearts may sweet peace and joy abide.
Softly, ah, softly,
Sing of the parting.
Now that as classmates we meet again no more.
Sing softly.

The young ladies were dressed in white and made a charming appearance on the stage.

OCCIDENTAL COLLEGE.

Interesting Exercises Yesterday Morning—An Attractive Programme.

A large party from Los Angeles went out to attend the closing exercises at the Occidental College, on Boyle Heights, yesterday morning, which consisted of a literary and musical entertainment by the students in College Hall. The guests were cordially received by Prof. and Mrs. McPherson and Miss Robinson, the lady principal. The hall had been tastefully decorated with flags, and the platform with bouquets of flowers and green foliage.

The exercises opened with the anthem, "I waited for the Lord," by the Mendelsohn Society of the school, and was followed by the invocation by Rev. Mr. Dimmose, after which the guests were made to feel doubly welcome in the beautiful words of greeting from Miss Grace A. McPherson.

After this Leslie E. Lynn gave a rapid review of that new and popular poem, "The Monk and the Knight," by Dr. F. W. Gausaulus, who has been aptly styled the Beecher of the West. The speaker received hearty and deserved applause, after which a piano duet was finely executed on the two instruments by Misses McPherson and Roberts.

Mrs. Martha J. Thompson read an essay on "Woman in the Past Century," and proved that the revolutions of the eighteenth century set in motion the forces that helped to sit woman beside her brother and equal with him.

This thoughtful essay was much enjoyed, and then came that sadly pathetic story of "Tobias' Monument," recited by the sweet sympathetic voice of Miss J. Bell Clay, which was very effective and won prolonged applause.

Miss M. Mandie Roberts rendered a solo, "As the Dawn," in a pleasing manner, and Miss Floy K. Roberts followed with an essay on "Woman in the Present Century," in which she rejoiced that the sun has at last arisen upon the gloom of the past; the last century was our forenoon, this is our midday and woman has furnished to her the best educational advantages.

Miss Zinneth G. Parker then propounded of "Woman in the Coming Century," and believed that the improvement in the next century is destined to be as great as in the last. With higher education, woman's breadth of mind will expand and the ideal woman may be fully realized. The quiet earnestness of these speakers was convincing and impressive.

A quartette, Misses Bell and Clay and Messrs. Parkhill and McPherson sang "Soft Floating on the Evening Air" with fine effect.

Donald M. Brookman gave an oration on "Personal Influence," in which he considered every man a unit in the vast aggregate and exerting a direct personal influence over those with whom he comes in contact.

Miss Maude E. Bell recited "Aristocles," a comic selection regarding the folly of practicing eloquence at any and all times, and some of the ridiculous results which are apt to follow.

Then came piano solos, "The Spinning Wheel" and "Morning Song" by Miss Grace A. McPherson, followed by a fine oration on "American Labor" from William E. Parkhill, and the trio, "On the Ocean," sang by Misses Roberts, Bell and Roberts, closed the exercises which were marked throughout with a zeal and earnestness which did great credit to themselves and their teachers.

Words of greeting were then listened to from Rev. Dr. Cattell, who expressed his great delight at being present. Dr. Cattell was for twenty years in charge of the college at La Fayette, Ind., one of the oldest colleges distinctly under Presbyterian control. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Wellen.

After the conclusion of the exercises in the chapel many adjourned to the common hall, where an appealing collection had been prepared. The post-prandial speeches were all very much to the point, but that one which soared beyond all others was that of Rev. Dr. Cattell, when he detailed his experiences in bringing Lafayette College, at Easton, Pa., from a one-horse concern to be one of the first colleges in the East.

Dr. Cattell was the first instance in America of appointing a young man to the presidency of a college—an example since so frequently and so profitably followed in many of the first classical institutions in the East. While Dr. Cattell spoke in a conversational manner, there were some parts of his speech very pathetic and very eloquent.

The future outlook of Occidental college is brighter and more hopeful than ever.

AT THE UNIVERSITY.

The Annual Concert of the College of Music—The Programme.

The musical event of the season took place at University last evening. The occasion was the annual concert by the College of Music. The chapel was packed to overflowing at an early hour. The decorations were unique and in good taste, consisting of a large number of fan palms and roses in profusion. Above the rostrum was a musical staff of ivy, with a treble clef of flowers and a beautiful bunch of red flowers twined with ivy.

The programme, which contained eighteen numbers, was opened with a vocal trio, "The Mariners," by Miss Ruth Hall, Messrs. Bacon and Balken. This was well rendered and was followed by a piano quartette, "The Minuet." The four young ladies who performed this piece were Lillian, Denebacher, Mann and Miller, played in excellent style and received several nice bouquets.

Miss Stephenson next gave a vocal solo, "With newer strings my mandolin." Her voice is a very sweet soprano, and the piece was well sung. This was followed by a piano solo, "Spring Song," played in a faultless manner by Miss Ada Strong.

M. McGowan next gave a vocal selection "When the orb next day," in a pleasing manner.

A vocal selection, "The Serenade," by Miss Jessie Goodwin, was very well received.

Miss Ada Strong, the sweet-voiced young soprano of the college, next sang "Good Night, My Child," in a manner which was very pleasing to her many friends, who gave her a hearty recall and several handsome bouquets.

The next number was a vocal solo, "Angel's Serenade," with violincello obbligato, by Mr. Stevens. Miss Grace Whitehorn, the popular soprano, gave this in a highly artistic manner.

The rich tenor voice of Charles Hayes was next heard to very good advantage in "Star of My Heart."

Miss Miller Peters played the Nocturne, Op. 303, with excellent touch. Under the care of Mrs. Carver, this young lady is rapidly developing into a fine pianist.

The splendid contralto voice of Miss Lettie Williams was next heard in "Beauty's Eyes." Miss Williams did this piece full justice. "O had I but a Loyal Sweetheart" was the next number, sung by Miss Little Rees. Her voice is a pleasant soprano and the audience was greatly pleased.

The next number was a vocal solo, "Nachtlinger in Grenada," with violincello obbligato, by Mr. Stevens. Miss Grace Whitehorn, the popular soprano, gave this in a highly artistic manner.

The rich tenor voice of Charles Hayes was next heard to very good advantage in "Star of My Heart."

Miss Miller Peters played the Nocturne, Op. 303, with excellent touch. Under the care of Mrs. Carver, this young lady is rapidly developing into a fine pianist.

The splendid contralto voice of Miss Lettie Williams was next heard in "Beauty's Eyes." Miss Williams did this piece full justice. "O had I but a Loyal Sweetheart" was the next number, sung by Miss Little Rees. Her voice is a pleasant soprano and the audience was greatly pleased.

This recital was undoubtedly the best one ever given by the University College of Music, and Mrs. Carver and Prof. Bacon are to be congratulated on the success of their entertainment.

A Big Snake Vanquished by a Bird. [Visalia Times.]

Walter Fewell witnessed a novel fight yesterday afternoon between a gopher snake and a kingbird. The contest was fought to a finish in the road near the creamery. The snake was a large one, and capable of swallowing his feathered opponent with ease; but the bird was too active for him and came out winner. The bird would hover over the snake but a foot or two above its head, and would strike it on the head from time to time, the snake all the while trying to seize the bird, but was unable to do so on account of its rapid movements. After some twenty minutes his snakeship gave up the fight in disgust and hurried away to avoid the thrusts of his tormentor.

The Supervisors.

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors yesterday the returns from the election recently held for the purpose of determining whether or not a special tax should be levied in the Belvidere school district, in order to raise $500 for additional school facilities, was received and filed.

Upon motion of Supervisor Forrester it was ordered that a telephone be placed in the School Superintendent's office.

THE SOCIAL EVIL.

A Crusade Organized Against Prostitution.

Efforts to Be Made to Reform the Fallen Women.

After Which Steps Will Be Taken to Close the Houses.

The Plan of Campaign as Agreed Upon by the Church People—Homes Will Be Provided for Those Who Wish to Reform.

Since the Mills meetings were held in this city the pastors of the various churches and the working members of the congregations have organized a crusade against the houses of prostitution of this city and to all appearances they have gone at it in the right way.

They have been digging up data during the past few weeks and claim that there are about 600 places where prostitution is practiced in this city and that 100 young girls who belong to respectable families have joined the ranks during the past year and are now living "the life of shame."

They claim that it is now an uncommon thing for gangs of boys ranging from 12 to 14 years of age to visit these dens nightly and if the youth of this city is to be saved every house of prostitution must be closed as soon as possible.

The good people have asked the Board of Police Commissioners to hold off until they have had an opportunity to reform many of the fallen women as possible. At a late hour Tuesday night a body of church people, composed of ladies and gentlemen, visited the disreputable portions of the city to spend some time watching the performances of the "crib" women. They will probably be ready to start the reform crusade this evening. As soon as they are satisfied that they can reform no more women they will begin to swear out complaints against the keepers of all houses that do not close up within the prescribed time fixed by the Police Commissioners.

The Movement Against Prostitution.

LOS ANGELES, June 22.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] There can be no doubt but that the number and publicity of houses of ill-fame in Los Angeles are both a blot on the city's escutcheon and a menace to social purity.

The name of Alameda street is infamous, and justly so; and there are other places that are fully as bad. The extent and character of this vice cannot be known to the public for if it were they would hardly give sleep to their eyes until the evil was suppressed.

It is said that there are nearly 600 places in the city where women live for immoral purposes, and a list has been made by one of the city officers of over 200 houses which are known to him, and which he does so. He boasts that it is sustained by the best names in the city, and the city officials have publicly confessed their inability to deal with it without a more decided public sentiment against it, which sentiment they do not think they have.

If you could look into that part of the city some evening, see the women in the doors and front yards, notice the men that go down thither, often in crowds, from the business part of the city, you might have some appreciation of the enormous evil that is out in midtown. And the neighborhood is an awful place, but it is only the seat of the cancer which sends out its infectious roots to reproduce itself in other parts of the city. The openness of the vice is one of the most striking things about it. It does not hide itself away from men to do any kind of work, and when it does so, it boasts that it is sustained by the best names in the city, and the city officials have publicly confessed their inability to deal with it without a more decided public sentiment against it, which sentiment they do not think they have.

But boys and girls are ruined here in large numbers. It is not an uncommon thing to see very small boys talking to prostitutes in the open light of day, and these boys, soon lost to all sense of shame, will furnish recruits to the great army of vagabonds and criminals. Then there are the girls, who are stoned on good authority that they are not worth 100 gold pieces to live into shame every year in the city. The work is done at low dances and other places where boys and girls meet together promiscuously, especially in the evening. Think of 100 girls going out from the same neighborhood, in the midst of these "cribs," there are saloons which open in the rear into yards and alleys that lead to these houses of death. Such an effort hardly touches the evil. It is only playing with the tail of the viper while it strikes its fangs into the body. We must strike at the root of the viper's head and grind it into the earth.

Neither is it sufficient if we suppress it in only one part of the city. To drive it from Alameda street to some other part of the city will not make it one whit less terrible. We must get on those who practice it. Such a measure seems hardly within the range of sensible men. If the pigs are in one part of the garden eating the peans, shall we drive them to another part to eat up the beans? If this vice ruins one locality will it not ruin another? Shall we cut the cancer out of one part of the body and plant it in another? What we want is an honest, persistent and determined effort to suppress every house in the city.

REV. DR. HASKINS'S RESIGNATION.

Compelled to Give up His Charge on Account of Falling Health.

It has been known for some time to the friends of Rev. Thomas W. Haskins, of Christ Church, that his health was bad, but it was the hope of the members of the vestry and congregation that he would regain his strength and be able to continue his work of usefulness as the rector of that church. So far, however, from his health improving, it became so bad that he tendered his resignation to the vestry, to take effect July 1. Bishop Nichols was in Southern California a few weeks ago, and to him Dr. Haskins communicated his intention of resigning.

SANTA ANA, June 22.—[Special.] Marshal Nichols has just returned from the corn fields and reported Bentley still at large. Reinforcements are being sent to the Garden Grove neighborhood. It is believed he will be apprehended in the morning, if not before. Mrs. Kidder avers Bentley will not leave the country when he learns she has been recaptured.

James G. Blaine.
(Philadelphia Inquirer.)

Mr. Blaine will never be President, but he will live in the hearts of the American people as one of its greatest statesmen, one of its most loved citizens. Mr. Blaine is a man great in heart and great in head. He has led the American people for a generation. He is far-seeing in statesmanship and has left an impress on this Nation which will last forever.

The above is essentially the ground taken by the committee that waited on the committee. The work cannot be done without the cooperation of the public. Has not the time come to act? Are we not urged by every worthy and noble motive to arise in our strength and save our fair city from this awful curse of open prostitution?

ONE OF THE COMMITTEE.

Mr. Gleason suggests a way.

LOS ANGELES, June 22.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] I have been reading the report of the City Council at last night's meeting, and noticing that the Council unanimously passed a resolution to close up and drive out all those unfortunate women who inhabit Alameda and other streets in this city. While I wholly favor the suppression of sin in all its forms, I believe I can see a better way to blot out this curse—a way that will not alone be worthy the praise and sanction of thousands, but a way that will deserve God's richest blessings on this city. I am to the Christian ladies—I mean those who are sanctified and have placed their all on the altar of God—to read God's command in I Corinthians xiii:2,3 and where they then stand. Let each sanctified lady invite one of her sisters in sin to her home to share her comforts and joy; extend to her the hand of a loving sister, in the name and for the sake of God, pointing her to a holy life in Jesus Christ; help her to be as good as she can make; help her to do some profitable work by which she may earn a decent living. I believe our heavenly Father could not be more honored, and this city would receive its greatest blessing for time and eternity.

On that the spirit of God may touch the hearts of Christian women to see and rescue their perishing sisters.

Complaints About the Street Sprinkling—News Notes and Personal.

A prominent business man on First street was yesterday heard to complain bitterly of the street-sprinkling system now in vogue on that thoroughfare. He said: "The sprinkling is all done late in the evening and the street is then deluged with water in order that some trace of the work may remain visible till the morrow. The result is that both street and crosswalks are made so muddy and slippery that it is almost impossible for any body, particularly a lady, to get from the sidewalk to a street car or vice versa, without having shoes and clothing bespattered with mud, or even as in several cases has occurred slipping on the wet crosswalks and falling in rich adobe mud." The attention of the street department will be called to the matter and an alleviation of the trouble asked for.

Mrs. Dr. Murphy, for a long time a most popular and enthusiastic worker in the various public enterprises projected by the ladies of Boyle Heights, composed of ladies and gentlemen, visited the disreputable portions of the city to spend some time watching the performances of the "crib" women. They will probably be ready to start the reform crusade this evening. As soon as they are satisfied that they can reform no more women they will begin to swear out complaints against the keepers of all houses that do not close up within the prescribed time fixed by the Police Commissioners.

The notorious A. J. Cross battery case was dismissed in Justice Owens's court yesterday. It will be remembered that Mrs. Cross was running away from her husband a few weeks ago, when he gave chase and was proceeding to thresh her when a young lady friend of the wife put in an appearance, armed with a pistol, and held the angry husband off until the police arrived. Mrs. Cross is anxious to secure a divorce and it is believed that the consideration for withdrawing the criminal charge is a promise on the part of the husband to allow her to secure her divorce.

Four decided sick looking drunks were in Justice Owens's dock yesterday afternoon. They made the usual excuses and mildly accepted from three to ten days each in the chain gang.

AN EXCITING CHASE.

The officers secured Bentley in a few minutes and started in hot pursuit. They were soon sighted headed for Garden Grove.

The officers laid whip to their horses, but the fleeing couple held their own. When the home of Bentley was reached the old man jumped from the buggy and escaped into a cornfield near the house. His paramour recaptured him and brought to the city. The old reprobate will surely be captured before morning, although up to midnight he is still a fugitive from justice. Bentley is reported to be a dangerous character when his ire is aroused, but the officers are prepared to meet him on even ground.

BENEFITS OF EATING ICE CREAM.

The value of ice cream as a remedy for certain intestinal troubles is being considerably advanced. Some, indeed, physicians permit it through typhoid fever, always insisting that it shall be of the purest quality. To the story recently going the round in print of the entire cure of a case of ulcers of the stomach by the sole and persistent use of ice cream may be added that of a woman known to the writer. She suffered from a serious affection of the eyes, directly traceable to digestive disturbance, and her physician finally put her upon ice cream as a sole diet.

For eleven months she literally lived upon ice cream, with the result of effecting a complete and apparently permanent cure. The theory is that the cream furnishes ample nourishment, while the diseased intestines, chilled from the low temperature of the food, are prevented from getting up inflammation during the process of digestion carried on by the healthy parts. —Jenness Miller Magazine.

One more of the Nation's idols is denied the Presidency. Perhaps this is well. Mr. Blaine could add nothing to his honors by being President. His active work is probably ended, but millions of his friends will never cease to think of him with the warmest gratitude.

The country has prospered under President Harrison and will continue to do so for four years more, but the magic name of Blaine has passed away as a political watchword. All honor to the great statesman, the beloved commoner. He has lost the Presidency but has gained eternal fame.

THE REPUBLICANS.

The Meeting of the State Central Committee.

The Convention to Be Held at Sacramento on July 26.

All the Expenses to Be Paid by Citizens of That Place.

The Call for the Convention as It Was Finally Adopted—The Basis of Representation—Test for Voters at the Primaries.

As stated in the Associated Press dispatches Tuesday morning, the Republican State Central Committee at its meeting in San Francisco Monday, decided to hold the Republican State Convention at Sacramento on Tuesday, June 26, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The following detailed report of the meeting is from the Chronicle of Tuesday:

The committee met in parlor A and B Palace Hotel, and W. F. Fitzgerald presided. He announced that the committee had assembled in pursuance of a resolution adopted by the State Executive Committee to fix the time and place for holding the next State convention, and such other business as might come before it. He said that the State Executive Committee had appointed the Executive Committee of twenty-one, which had organized, and its acts would be reported in detail. He announced that the first business before the convention was the election of a chairman of the State Central Committee.

W. S. Moore of Los Angeles said that he believed that the best interest of the party would be served by ratifying the election of officers by the State Executive Committee, and he moved that W. F. Fitzgerald should be elected chairman, J. N. E. Wilson vice-chairman, P. N. Lillithen treasurer, P. F. Bassett and Jake Steppacher assistant secretary. The motion was unanimously adopted.

Chairman Fitzgerald said he was profoundly grateful for the compliment of selection as chairman of the State Central Committee. It was, in fact, owing to the members of the State Executive Committee, he said, that he had not only not sought the place, but absolutely declined to accept it at first. He did not think that he could spare the time from his business. The committee differed from him, however, and having no desire to shirk any demand which they saw fit to make of him, he waived his own inclinations. Accepting the duties and responsibilities of the position, he would discharge them to the best of his ability, to the best interests of the party which has done so much for the common good and the common country. He eloquently urged the adoption of his resolution and declared that it was one that every Republican could point to with pride and one that every good citizen could conscientiously support, having been able, wise and statesmanlike.

The roll of the committee was then called and all were found to be present in person or by proxy.

The chairman having announced that the selection of a place for holding the next convention was in order, C. T. Jones of Sacramento said that he desired, on behalf of the citizens of Sacramento, to invite the Republican State Central Committee to meet in that city, which reference was made at the time. The place I think was Adrian, Mich., although I am not sure of that.

I would not willingly misrepresent Col. Ingersoll, and shall send to my informants for confirmation, but I will say this, that if I can get it to you, and if not, of course I will never repeat the statement. In his note Mr. Ingersoll is certainly mistaken in saying that he never lectured two or three evenings in the same town, as he delivered three lectures on three successive evenings in Cooper Institute, New York, from which, on the second evening, some persons, at least, withdrew during the lecture.

With kind regards I remain sincerely yours,

Gen. Grant's Birthplace.
Los Angeles, June 20. (To the Editor of This Times.) In your issue of yesterday the statement is made that Gen. Grant was born at Georgetown, O. He was born at Point Pleasant, Clermont county, O., a little hamlet about twenty miles above Cincinnati—a beautiful little nook directly on the Ohio River. Dr. S. Rogers, long a medical man, who died in Cincinnati, now deceased, used to take pleasure in saying: "I have done what no other man in the world has done. I was the first person that ever saw Gen. Grant, and I lived to vote for him twice for President. He was born the day I was 25 years old—Aug. 27, 1822." The wife of the little doctor, who was several years younger than himself, was able to tell of her girlhood experiences with the stout, rollicking baby crawling about the floor, when as a neighbor she rendered kindly assistance occasionally to her mother.

And Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the remedy. It builds up the system, regulates the functions, restores health and strength. It's a legitimate medicine, not a beverage; purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, and made especially for woman's needs. Resolved, that the Republicans of the State convention shall be unanimous in their action in voting for the nomination of Mr. Niles' amendment, as it was adopted as a whole as follows:

SAN FRANCISCO, June 20, 1892.—At a meeting of the Republican State Central Committee of California, held this day, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, that a Republican State convention shall be held in the City of Sacramento on Tuesday, the 26th day of June, 1892, at two (2) o'clock to nominate nine (9) Presidential electors and nine (9) alternate Presidential electors; of this number two (2) electors and two (2) alternate electors to be nominated from the State at large by the state convention, and one (1) elector and one (1) alternate elector to be nominated from each Congress district of the State and by the delegates elected to the State convention from the counties comprising each Congress district of the State, as provided in the act entitled "An act to amend section 1, article 2, into Congress districts," approved May 11, 1891, so far as the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the convention.

Resolved, that the nominations made by each district Congressional convention for electors and alternate electors must be reported to the state convention before its final adjournment.

Resolved, that the delegates elected to the State convention from the counties comprising the several Congress districts shall meet, constitute and form Congress district conventions to nominate one (1) representative to Congress from each district, and each district convention, when such nomination is made, is requested to report its nomination to the Executive Committee of the Republican State Central Committee.

Resolved, that the basis of representation to state conventions shall be as follows: One (1) delegate at-large for each county; one (1) delegate for each 250 votes cast for the Hon. H. H. Markham for Governor of California at the election held in November, 1890, and one (1) delegate for each additional fraction of 125 votes or 55% delegates.

Resolved, that the apportionment of delegates for each county shall be as follows:

Resolved, that the delegates from the several counties shall be chosen in such manner as shall be determined by the Republican County Committee of each county and each district convention, that primary elections be held wherever they may be deemed advisable. In counties where more than 15,000 votes were cast for Hon. H. H. Markham for Governor delegates shall be selected from the Assembly districts, under the Legislative Apportionment Law passed by the Legislature, and the proportion to the vote cast in each Assembly district.

The committee directs that where primary elections are held the test for voters shall be: "Did you vote the Republican State ticket at the last general election, or would you have done so if you had voted, and for whom?" The candidates for nominees of the Republican National Convention at the coming election! When primary elections are ordered they must be held at least five (5) days prior to the time for the meeting of the said State convention. A call for the primary election must be published in at least one paper in each circuit, which may be printed for five (5) days prior to the election, and the call must be signed by the chairman and secretary of the County Committee.

Resolved, that the committee hereby calls attention of the State and district conventions to the provisions of sections 1188, 1190, 1191 Political Code, relating to the giving of certificates with the Secretary of State of the nominations made by such conventions.

Resolved, that the State and district conventions be requested to adopt resolutions delegating their authority to fill vacancies that may occur by reason of removal, death, or from any other cause, of any nominee for Presidential elector or Representative in Congress (section 1186, Political Code). Copies of such resolutions certified to by the chairman and secretary of all conventions shall be filed with the Executive Committee of the Republican State Central Committee.

Resolved, that duplicate copies of the names of delegates elected in each county shall be signed by the chairman and secretary of the county committee and forwarded to the secretary of this committee.

W. F. FITZGERALD, Chairman.

G. F. Bassett, Secretary.

On motion of J. H. Mahoney of San Francisco thanks for services to the party were voted to Irwin C. Stump, D. M. Burns, Charles F. Bassett and Jacob Steppacher.

The committee then adjourned to the call of the Executive Committee.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

Brother Mills Responds.

SANTA BARBARA, June 18.—(To the Editor of THE TIMES.) A copy of your valued paper of June 15 has been sent to me, containing a note from Col. R. G. Ingersoll, contradicting a statement of mine, concerning diminishing audiences which were said to have attended three lectures by him in a certain town. I made this statement on the authority of two reputable gentlemen, one of whom is a citizen of Illinois, the other of Portland, Or. These men were unacquainted with one another and told the story to prevent the same person, and both said that lived near the city, which reference was made at the time. The place I think was Adrian, Mich., although I am not sure of that.

The wife of the little doctor, who was several years younger than himself, was able to tell of her girlhood experiences with the stout, rollicking baby crawling about the floor, when as a neighbor she rendered kindly assistance occasionally to her mother.

From these old friends of mine I have often heard of the Grant family and their early hours, and I have many times seen the spot myself. A SUBSCRIBER.

"How do I look?" That depends, madam, upon how you feel. If you're suffering from intestinal disturbances, irregularities or weaknesses, you're sure to "look it."

And Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the remedy. It builds up the system, regulates the functions, restores health and strength. It's a legitimate medicine, not a beverage; purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, and made especially for woman's needs. In the cure of all "female complaints," it's guaranteed to give satisfaction, or the money refunded. Not only herself, was able to tell of her girlhood experiences with the stout, rollicking baby crawling about the floor, when as a neighbor she rendered kindly assistance occasionally to her mother.

Resolved, that the Republicans of the State convention shall be unanimous in their action in voting for the nomination of Mr. Niles' amendment, as it was adopted as a whole as follows:

SAN FRANCISCO, June 20, 1892.—At a meeting of the Republican State Central Committee of California, held this day, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, that a Republican State convention shall be held in the City of Sacramento on Tuesday, the 26th day of June, 1892, at two (2) o'clock to nominate nine (9) Presidential electors and nine (9) alternate Presidential electors; of this number two (2) electors and two (2) alternate electors to be nominated from the State at large by the state convention, and one (1) elector and one (1) alternate elector to be nominated from each Congress district of the State and by the delegates elected to the State convention from the counties comprising each Congress district of the State, as provided in the act entitled "An act to amend section 1, article 2, into Congress districts," approved May 11, 1891, so far as the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the convention.

Resolved, that the nominations made by each district Congressional convention for electors and alternate electors must be reported to the state convention before its final adjournment.

Resolved, that the delegates elected to the State convention from the counties comprising the several Congress districts shall meet, constitute and form Congress district conventions to nominate one (1) representative to Congress from each district, and each district convention, when such nomination is made, is requested to report its nomination to the Executive Committee of the Republican State Central Committee.

Resolved, that the basis of representation to state conventions shall be as follows:

Resolved, that the delegates from the several counties shall be chosen in such manner as shall be determined by the Republican County Committee of each county and each district convention, that primary elections be held wherever they may be deemed advisable. In counties where more than 15,000 votes were cast for Hon. H. H. Markham for Governor delegates shall be selected from the Assembly districts, under the Legislative Apportionment Law passed by the Legislature, and the proportion to the vote cast in each Assembly district.

The committee directs that where primary elections are held the test for voters shall be: "Did you vote the Republican State ticket at the last general election, or would you have done so if you had voted, and for whom?" The candidates for nominees of the Republican National Convention at the coming election!

When primary elections are ordered they must be held at least five (5) days prior to the time

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

Brother Mills Responds.

SANTA BARBARA, June 18.—(To the Editor of THE TIMES.) A copy of your valued paper of June 15 has been sent to me, containing a note from Col. R. G. Ingersoll, contradicting a statement of mine, concerning diminishing audiences which were said to have attended three lectures by him in a certain town. I made this statement on the authority of two reputable gentlemen, one of whom is a citizen of Illinois, the other of Portland, Or. These men were unacquainted with one another and told the story to prevent the same person, and both said that lived near the city, which reference was made at the time. The place I think was Adrian, Mich., although I am not sure of that.

I would not willingly misrepresent Col. Ingersoll, and shall send to my informants for confirmation, but I will say this, that if I can get it to you, and if not, of course I will never repeat the statement. In his note Mr. Ingersoll is certainly mistaken in saying that he never lectured two or three evenings in the same town, as he delivered three lectures on three successive evenings in Cooper Institute, New York, from which, on the second evening, some persons, at least, withdrew during the lecture.

With kind regards I remain sincerely yours,

B. FAY MILLS.

Gen. Grant's Birthplace.

Los Angeles, June 20. (To the Editor of This Times.) In your issue of yesterday the statement is made that Gen. Grant was born at Georgetown, O. He was born at Point Pleasant, Clermont county, O., a little hamlet about twenty miles above Cincinnati—a beautiful little nook directly on the Ohio River. Dr. S. Rogers, long a medical man, who died in Cincinnati, now deceased, used to take pleasure in saying: "I have done what no other man in the world has done. I was the first person that ever saw Gen. Grant, and I lived to vote for him twice for President. He was born the day I was 25 years old—Aug. 27, 1822." The local markets showed few changes today. Potatoes are in liberal supply and slightly lower.

MONEY, STOCKS AND BONDS.
New York, June 22.—The stock market as a rule, was not strong, though in a few cases prices were firm. A decidedly strong liquidation in Burlington and Lackawanna drove those stocks down materially. The Grangers were most active. Northern Pacific preferred was active and higher. The close was dull, but steady to firm, generally at only slight changes for the day.
